Japanese Liaison Council of Second-Generation Atomic Bomb Survivors (JLCSGABS)

On December 21st, 1988, the Japanese Liaison Council of Second-Generation Atomic Bomb Survivors made up of groups was formed by the second-generation survivors of the atomic bombs (hereinafter called “2nd-generation A-bomb survivors”) who live in Japan. One of its purposes is to unite their voices in their appeal for support measures to be taken by the Japanese government for them, as part of their human rights. Another important purpose is to call for a nuclear-free world so that no one becomes a nuclear victim again. At present, the Council is joined by 19 groups of 2nd-generation A-bomb survivors in Japan.
