China Women's Development Foundation (CWDF)

China Women's Development Foundation is a national public foundation. Its aim is to safeguard women's rights and interests, improve women's quality of life, and promote the development of women in China, so as to make contributions to the building of a harmonious society. Over time, to address the issues that are the biggest concern of women and the problems that are most relevant to women's interests, CWDF has launched a series of charity programs on poverty reduction, women's health, and women's entrepreneurship. These actions have achieved pronounced social effects. CWDF's projects including Revolving Loans for Mothers, Health Express for Mothers, Water Cellar for Mothers, and Subsidies for Impoverished Hero Mothers, and Postal Parcels for Mothers, have won the "China Charity Award", the top honor of charity recognized by the Chinese government. In July 2016, CWDF obtained consultative status with the United Nations Economic and Social Council.
